Harry's Visions

Harry once told me that he often has visions of future events. It was obvious that he was serious.

I'm not superstitious, but I am curious. Harry seems to be a rational human being. But he doesn't have a credential or any special training because none is required to be a prophet.

Throughout history, there have been many people who have claimed to have the gift of prophecy. They've spoken in mysterious phrases and in puzzling riddles. They've given perennial warnings of terrestrial destruction, nefarious plots, religious rebellions, and war.

We all know that life on this planet is precarious. We think these predictions of dire events could be true, so we pay attention to them.

If Harry's visions showed a glorious future, would he be less credible?
