The Wild Colt

Jim hasn't told Meg that he sold the colt. Jim does think she'll be sad when she's led to the stall and the colt isn't there.

But Jim couldn't trust the wild colt with his blind child. You couldn't hitch the colt up to go on a stroll. He had a swift kick and wouldn't mind Jim. Jim didn't want that colt to whack his child.

Jim is a kind dad and he doesn't want Meg to be mad or sad.
