Hazel and the Robot

Glen said he didn't have any fun with Hazel, so he stuck that old dragon in a trunk in his closet.

Glen had a robot. When Glen did wind him up and press a switch, the robot would twist and swivel. Hazel couldn't do that.

When he went to bed, Glen held the robot in his hand. But the robot was stiff and cold. Hazel the dragon wasn't stiff. She had a soft body he could hug.

Glen was glad he hadn't put Hazel in the trash.
