My Friend Jenny

Jenny says she is my friend, but I'm not sure about that.

When I get a small bonus, I'm happy. But Jenny is cross. She says I shouldn't accept such a skimpy bonus.

When I want to discuss a problem, Jenny will dismiss it. She says, "You wouldn't have a problem if you were less timid."

When I put on my new silk dress, Jenny was a critic. She said, "The fabric is a bit shoddy. I expect it would be spiffy if you were not so skinny."

Could it be that Jenny doesn't know how to be a friend?
