Tom's Long Trip

Tom was having difficulty keeping his eyes open. It had been a long trip, and he was getting sleepy. He planned to pull off the main road at the next intersection to find a motel.

But Tom nodded off. His truck slowly drifted across the road. The jolt was enough to get his attention, but he overreacted by twisting the wheel too quickly. The truck slid into a post.

Tom was the only victim in the accident. He had a concussion and was dizzy for a few days. He was upset with himself. He should not have tried to keep going.
