Move to Dallas

His steps are slow as he approaches the house. Frank doesn't see how he can explain to Cathleen that he needs to be in Dallas in two days.

This will be their fifth move and the load will fall on her again. It isn't fair. She must remain when he hits the road.

Cathleen packs with speed, calls their friends, checks with the mailman and proceeds to get all of the extra details done. When the van pulls into Dallas, she will be the one who fixes up the new rental. Frank wishes he could change things, but that's the way it is.
