The Mugger

Ron is in the county jail waiting for the public defender. How could he be so unlucky?

There was no denying that the description of the mugger matched Ron. And Ron had been at the subway station. But he wasn't the mugger.

Ron had been candid with the police, but they had the impression that he was being untruthful.

Ron would have to reconstruct all of the events of that day. It will be difficult to recall the details. Ron would like the eyewitness to admit that he's not the right man.
