

Lesson 10
READ THIS STORY #2, Advanced

Dictation

Jewel examined the sheets in front of her in frustration. It was late when her boss had given her some dictation. At the end of the busy day, her mind had been in a state of confusion. She had lost her concentration before he was half-way through the communication to the congregation.

She should have told him. It would have been an aggravation, but he could have started dictating again. Now, what should she do?

She had the inclination to toss her notes out of the window. Then she'd declare that the notes were lost. But that wouldn't be the truth.

She hoped he wouldn't ask that she give up her position.