Luggage

It's an advantage not to have a lot of luggage when you travel. Usually people pack too much when they go on vacation.

Excess baggage will complicate your plans. It takes a lot of time to unload and repack your things when you change locations.

If you have a small cabin on a ship, extra baggage becomes an aggravation. If you travel by bus or train, you may have difficulty finding storage space in the racks.

Airlines are often blamed for losing luggage. It is less likely that you will lose a bag if you only take what you are able to manage without depending on help from someone else.
