Disagreeable Incident

It was only nine, but Judy was frazzled. She closed her eyes, but she was too upset to sleep.

There had been a disagreeable incident at work that was still unresolved. Judy had made a grave mistake. Her carelessness had been inexcusable.

Judy got up and went to the kitchen. She cut a slice of chocolate cake, hoping it would make her feel happier.

She decided that she couldn't lie about what had happened, and she wouldn't blame someone else. She would apologize to her boss as soon as he was accessible.

She hoped she could convince him to give her a second chance.
