The Abominable Snowman

Did you hear the news on TV? There's been another sighting of the Abominable Snowman. This time, there was physical evidence of his presence. On the news, they showed the sheriff making a moulage (a mold) of the creature's footprints. His deputy displayed a tuft of straight black hair that had been found near the footprints.

Dad thinks the entire episode is a hoax. He's a skeptic, but I'm not. Many people have reported seeing a huge, hairy, human-like creature with long arms. Sometimes he's called Bigfoot, sometimes Sasquatch, others call him the Abominable Snowman.

These sightings have usually been in the mountainous parts of our country. But this same type of creature has been sighted in the mountains of Asia. There he's called Yeti.

The strange part about this latest sighting is that it wasn't in the mountains. It occurred in a swampy part of Louisiana. I wonder how he managed to get there? Maybe Dad is right. Perhaps some prankster planted the evidence.

What do you think?
